

ABSTRACT

A system and method for obtaining a frequency error estimate representing the difference between a reference frequency and the frequency of a space-time transmit diversity signal is disclosed herein. The method includes taking the correlation of total sums, comprised of partial 5 sums taken in defined first and second intervals, to represent the frequency error as the imaginary component of the correlation function.